

A Note on Online Meetings:

The SRS CAB uses the Microsoft Live Meeting service for the recording and live webcast of all committee meetings. The Live Meeting software works on many internet browsers; however, at times, there may be problems when attempting to use Microsoft Live Meeting on an Apple computer. Because the meeting software is produced by Microsoft and they are in direct competition with Apple, there can be issues that center around how each of the two operating systems interacts with Java (the programming language that Live Meeting uses). The following link provides information from Microsoft on possible solutions problems you may have with using Live Meeting on an Apple: <http://support.microsoft.com/kb/884961>

For Windows, there is a small download can make the online meeting run smoother; however, that download is optional. The service should offer you the option to use the web-based client if you choose not to download software to your computer.
